Magdalen Tower, a portion of the College of the same name, is the most famous tower in Oxford. It was built in 1492-1507, the construction being erroneously attributed to Wolsey, who was twice bursar during the progress of the work. It is 150 feet high, and contains a peal of ten bells. For 400 years it has been a custom to sing, on the summit of this tower, a Latin hymn in celebration of the 1st May.

Dear Alice
With all good wishes
for your birthday.
Will send you what I promised you
when I got back on Saturday. I will rejoice to you
and all at home
from your brother George
